No wonder Ellie had her sights set on something impressive for her tooth-pulling. Her siblings have experimented with extraction methods like "floss attached to a helmet while one kid rode off on a scooter," a "Styrofoam airplane with floss", "bike and floss" and even floss attached to the family dog's collar.

There were also violations at the Texas and Alabama plants. In Alabama, FDA investigators observed at least two employees working with the food wearing soiled clothing. In Texas, investigators saw condensation dripping directly into food and onto surfaces that came directly in contact with food. In all of the plants, the FDA found dirty equipment and infrastructure that made cleaning difficult.

Because everyone cares so much about tuition fees, don't they? But last time I looked it was Tony Blair's Labour government which first brought in tuition fees – without any mandate to do so. And they weren't punished. And it was Tony Blair who, with no mandate, raised tuition fees. Again, without being punished in the polls. And it was the Tories who proposed raising tuition fees yet again after 2010 and once again they have not been punished by the electorate.
